

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

Embodiments of the present invention relate to a method that can limit at least one service to a radio device (e.g. a cellular telephone) according to a location of the radio device. For example, a user can program a cellular telephone, so he/she can receive e-mail messages on their cellular phone when they are work and not receive them when they are home.